THE MASSEY-PILOT SUIT

will show that in the election of Congressmen-at-Large that there was a contest, and that it was a costly affair, and that Mr. Massey got $3,500, and that he put the money in his pocket and said he had spent more than that, and refused to pay his lawyers.

We will show you that up to the time he was Superintendent of Education that he was impetuous, that this is not the first time Mr. Massey has been charged with this kind of thing. We will put men on the stand who will say that Mr. Massey is no novice in the matter of giving or taking bribes. Mr. Massey asked a man to vote for him as United States senator and offered him money. Mr. Massey is such a man that he will travel on a free pass and charge the amount to the State. He is by nature a bribe taker, he will change his politics for an office and his honesty for cash.

In regard to this suit I will say he was a long time bringing it. He has been denounced since 1879. We don't intend to imply that Gov. McKinney, Gov. O'Ferrall and Mr. Scott have been guilty of any impropriety, and we would disclaim it here if necessary. Because Mr. Massey is associated with these gentlemen it does not imply that they were dishonest. These gentlemen had different departments and gentlemen will not interfere with the mere matter of detail, and so it appears that Mr. Massey controlled the affairs of his department. We believe these gentlemen innocent. We believe Mr. Massey guilty.

WE ARE GOING TO SHOW.

We are going to show you that Womack is a gambler and a briber and that he escaped the punishment in Washington State by filing a plea of lunacy. In Canada, at the Queen's Hotel, there were embazements on the records Mr. Massey being between two thieves.

Mr. Thom said we went into the affair with premeditation. Of course we did. If otherwise we ought to have been lashed out of the country. Mr. Thom says if he is not guilty we will have to suffer the penalties. You can't do it. You can't punish a corporation, and as for Sam Small, you can't stop him from writing. He may have a hard time getting something to write on, but he will write. Mr. Wise then went into a discussion of the liberty of the press.

In regard to the responsibility of the directors for the charge he said they would be able to show that they did not know of the charges complained of none of these gentlemen knew that Massey was to be attacked.

Should you find a verdict for the plaintiff by what calculation will you find a value of the character traduced because you can't spoil a rotten egg. He then took his seat and Judge Neely arose and said:

JUDGE NEELY CLOSED.

If this man is to be tried, let him be tried by the facts. These gentlemen desire to prove a conspiracy and they cannot move one foot till they have proved a deliberate conspiracy. He has the right to be confronted by his accusers and in place of them we have the reported statements of people all over this country—men who are tainted with personal malice; against this plaintiff. He then replied to Mr. Heath and said an attack had been made by him on Mr. Massey because he had not paid a debt that he did not owe. Mr. Massey will say he owed nobody and that he had never refused to pay any debt which he properly owed. You said there are other judgments against him. Show them.

MR. NEELY AND MR. WISE.

Judge Neely, referred to the fact that Judge Heath had given all of the other Superintendents of Education titles except Mr. Massey, and in speaking of Mr. Farr, said he was the result of an administration, the like of which he hoped he would never see in this State again. Mr. Wise blushed to the roots of his hair, and Judge Neely, standing on the tip of his toes, was in the act of throwing some hot shot into Mr. Wise in this connection when stopped by the Judge.

Who are the men who are raising all of this row about the mal-administration? Ginn & Co.

The only way these people could fail in securing a contract is by bidding for the contract and being under bid by a rival. Ginn & Co. have pledged themselves to stand between these people and cost growing out of this suit. We will show by a letter, written only a few days ago, a statement that unless some of the many pledges made by Ginn & Co. are made good, they could not possibly make good those charges.

He was not the attorney of Womack; he was able to take care of himself. The defense has said that Womack was indicted in Washington, but they refuse to tell you that the indictment was dismissed. When Womack was in Washington the book company had not been organized. He then went over the statements of the other side in regard to the copy book transactions and said $300 given Womack had nothing whatever to do with the copy book.

The publication in the New York World had been corrected. Speaking of the Pilot, he said it needed everything but whiskey. There was one thing not counted on which Mr. Small did not appear to have and that was caution. He spoke of the bitterness of the attack of the Pilot on Mr. Massey, etc.

We will prove to you that Mr. Massey has been living on an economical life and that he was able to make every deposit named by these gentlemen. Mr. Massey will say that for a number of years past he has netted $1,200 to $1,400 a year.

We are prepared to make a full and complete showing of the financial transactions of Mr. Massey and we shall expect a verdict at your hands.

As soon as Judge Neely had concluded his address Mr. L. D. Starke, Jr., arose and said he was present as an attorney for Mr. S. Q. Collins. That Mr. Collins is not a director of the company; that he was out of the State when the company was formed; that he never gave his consent to the use of his name; has never attended any of the meetings and is in no way connected with the company.

Judge Whitehurst said he appeared as counsel for Capt. Jno. L. Roper; that Capt. Roper was made a director before he was a stockholder; that he has never taken part in the direction of the company and did not approve of the attack when published; that he has since resigned as a director.

NOTES.

The important witnesses for both sides will arrive to day. Mr. Massey will likely take the stand first and is very apt to be before the court for several days. He appears to be in fair health. If so, his friends believe he will be a full match for the most astute lawyers.

There is nothing now to hinder taking the evidence. The presentation of the case was given great latitude and resembled in many respects an argument after the evidence was submitted.

Certainly it is that the jury has been well educated and will enter upon the discharge of their important duty with full knowledge of the issues.

It is said that Mr. Massey and his lawyers expect a verdict for a good round sum.

From the hundreds of pages of type written matter to be read, the regiment of witnesses and the volumes of legal authority to be submitted on almost every point at issue, several days if not two or three weeks will be devoted to the trial.

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C.

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C., June 26.—Two teams from the lumber mill of the Toadvine Lumber Company and Jones & Co. played a game of ball on yesterday afternoon, which was won by the former. Score: 11 to 7. Batteries—Taylor and Palmer; Forrest and Foreman. Umpire—Simons.

The Blue and Grays and the Cyclones play the fourth match game in the series for the championship of the city to-morrow (Thursday) afternoon.

The series at present stands two games to one in favor of the Cyclones. Fearing and Simon will probably do the twirling and Ziegler will umpire. Admission, 10 cents.

SUFFOLK LOCAL.

Will Drewry, of Southampton county, is visiting Edgar Applewhite, Chestnut street.

Messrs. St. Lion Seal and E. R. Nichols, of Windsor, N. C., are registered at the Commercial.

An inventory of the stock of Elam & Co., recently assigned, is being taken.

Miss Alma Ellis, daughter of Mr. S. T. Ellis, is expected to return this week from Paris, where she has been perfecting herself in the French language.

Master Cliff Jones expects to leave to day to visit friends in New York city.

Mr. W. W. Staley is visiting his family in Franklin, N. C.

Judge Kirby and Capt. A. P. Gomer, clerk, have been engaged all the week in entering court orders.

Mr. John S. Webb, a well known contractor of Chincoteague, Va., was in Suffolk yesterday.

Something of a sensation was created in Isle of Wight county this week by the arrest of a well to do citizen, charged with burglary.

At a preliminary hearing he was bailed for appearance in the County Court, where it is thought he will prove his innocence.

Mr. Louis Catogen, of Roanoke, formerly a Suffolk merchant, is in town visiting old friends.

The infant of Mr. and Mrs. N. G. Norfleet, of North Main street, who has been extremely ill, is reported as improving.

Schooner C. B. Leet left port yesterday with lumber for Boston. Schooner Powell, of Baltimore, arrived to load with the same commodity.

Prof. Herbert Scholz, formerly of Suffolk, where he taught in the Collegiate and Military Institute, has issued catalogues announcing the opening of the Damascus High School, in North Carolina, of which he is principal.

Dr. John R. Hawkins, president of Kittrell's College, N. C., will pass through Suffolk to-day on a special car, in company with a body of teachers, who have been in Hampton at a teachers' meeting. They will be met here by a committee.

Workmen have nearly completed the task of extricating the machinery from the plant of the Kindling Wood Factory prior to its removal and establishment at Williamsport, Pa., the home of the owner, Jerome Moltz, Esq. Parts of the framing in the present building will also be transferred.

Will be removed in court.—The counsel for the plaintiff in the Bruce-Elis case for the trusteeship of Nansemond county yesterday announced their intention of discontinuing the taking of depositions, which they have been engaged on for about a week, and removing the case directly in court. The reason for this action is the extremely slow progress made, owing to the propounding of many useless questions, which would be eliminated by the judge in the court room. The case will be called in the County Court by Judge Kirby on July 9th, at which time the oral examination of witnesses will begin and probably continue for some weeks.

The Practical Question.

"I think it only fair to warn you, Hiram," said the aged politician to his son, a promising young man who had been elected to the legislature and was about to start to the capital of the state to enter upon his duties, "that measures deeply affecting the public welfare will come up for consideration before the body to which you have been elected, and corrupt, designing men will seek to influence your vote. They will try to bribe you, Hiram. They will offer you money. Be on your guard against them, my boy, and remember that the reputation of the family whose name you bear and the honor of the district you represent are at stake."

"I will, father," replied the young man, deeply moved. "How—how much will they probably offer me?"—Chicago Tribune.

School of Political Philosophy.

A school of historical and political philosophy will be one of the attractions at Columbian university next year. The design of the new department is to acquaint the learner with the genesis, development and growth of political institutions. Students will be sent, as far as practicable, to the original sources of information, of which the Capital City has unexcelled advantages. The archives of the department of state will be employed to bring students into direct contact with the original documents of American history.—Washington Post.

Mr. Fish's Opinion.

From ex-Speaker Hamilton Fish's remarks it may be inferred that with a properly constructed sun umbrella Governor Morton would be able to weather the heat of Washington for four years.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

ANIMALS IN BATTLE.

WILL THE NEXT CENTURY SEE THEM AIDING MEN IN WAR?

Swallows Surer Than Pigeons—Storks, Falcons, Dogs and Geese Used by Ingenious European Military Experts—Elephants Have Long Been Called On.

When the next European war comes, it is more than probable that it will have a novel and picturesque point of military interest about it in the employment of animals, which will play quite as important a part in the campaigns in their way as the generals and soldiers. Ever since the earliest days of war—from the very beginning of things, that is—horses have, of course, been military aids of the greatest value. Now it is planned—indeed, several of the European powers are actively making experiments—to draft other animals into the service, with the expectation that they will be of great help.

France, during the times of the Franco-German conflict, brought the science of carrier pigeons up to a high standard of efficiency. Then it was thought that no superior to this little bird could be found as a carrier of dispatches. But the French military authorities are beginning to think differently now. Experiments have been made with the swallow, and he has proved to be swift, surer and altogether more satisfactory. There is the greatest probability, therefore, that swallows will be part of the army equipment for the next campaign.

A new idea has sprung up in French military circles nevertheless that, after all, it is rather imprudent for a great army to intrust its messages, frequently of great moment, to such small birds, subject to attacks from the great birds of prey that are continually on the outlook for such as they. It has been proposed that storks be trained for dispatch service, the theory being that the "most instinct" in these birds, their swift, certain flight, their tremendous wing and leg power and their strength to meet any attack whatsoever in the air would render them ideal messengers of war.

In Russia a theory a good deal like this has already been put into practice, and a number of falcons have, this past year, been put into training for the Russian army dispatch service and have proved eminently satisfactory. The falcon himself is a most warlike bird, and ardently resists every attack upon him. Warsaw and Brest-Litewski, on the western frontier, have been the seats of these experiments.

As to animals pure and simple, the elephant cannot drawers in use in the British army in India are very familiar, and from the days of the earliest British possession there have done magnificent service. In fact, they were indispensable in the sepoy campaigns. The camels of the east are also valuable adjuncts in the battles and forced marches around desert regions, because of their tremendous powers of endurance.

But it has been reserved for Germany to bring forward dogs as war animals. An exhibition of "war dogs" has recently been held in Dresden, and some splendid specimens of canine warriors shown. As an attacking column these dogs will show a formidable front against the soldiery of any other nation, and as discouragers of hesitancy during the retreat of an enemy they will prove invaluable to the regiment possessing them. Brigades of dragons and husars will doubtless be superseded by dog platoons. The only difficulty that the German officers foresee is teaching the dogs to keep ranks until the order "Charge!" is given. Internal discussions over bones and rations are also to be feared. Yet, at all events, there will be no difficulty in getting the new fanged warriors to advance upon the enemy in spite of shot and shell.

Event that traditionally stupid animal, the goose, stupid in spite of the fact that she is reported to have saved Rome at one time—has a possibility of military glory under the new ideas. There is an authentic incident of a Bavarian regiment of light husars, stationed at Ingolstadt, Germany, who adopted a young goose during their stay there and made it, through kindness, become so tame that it was quite the pet of the regiment. It showed its gratitude by assuming the responsibility of sentry duty and remaining faithfully in the vicinity of the sentry box each day from sunrise to sunset.

There was no need whatever for the sentry to keep careful guard, or even to walk up and down, for the goose (this is a historic incident) kept her eye open, and when any one approached would set up a tremendous squawking. The sentry could go to sleep if he pleased (and indeed many of them did). Yet, strange to say, no sentry during the goose's sojourn in the camp was ever caught napping or found wanting. In fact, the soldiers used to say that the goose did the best duty in the regiment. Such are animal possibilities of the near future at military outposts.—New York World.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.
